Dear Peter:

Here is a start-up letter on Nell Dorr's book. I write shortly after discussing this with Joe Blumenthal, and taking careful notes of everything said. He has recently had, last Friday, a session with Nell Dorr, and I now feel we can set the wheels in motion, and put down a really sensible schedule.

There are going to be 5,000 copies printed; the book will measure 11" x 9", in the fashion of THE BARE FEET; there will be a three-sided bleed on many of the pages.

The paper for the book throughout, including jacket and cover, should be Superfine, Eggshell White.

Nell is most anxious to have the book come out in the Spring of '68. Joe is already beginning to set the type and he can deliver the complete dummy with the type all pasted up, plus reproduction proofs for your printing process by January 15th. The type will probably be ready sooner than that.

The entire book will be produced in gravure.

The cover and the jacket will be exactly the same art work and lettering, although Joe has suggested that on the book cover itself the title might be printed in gold rather than the gray-tone which will be indicated for the jacket.

In ordering paper for the 96 pages you should allow for endpapers to be extra, also printed on the same stock.

We have all agreed that the book should be bound by Russell Rutter.

Last, but not least, I relay to you Nell Dorr's wishes to be on hand during the actual printing process of the book, which she loves to do, both because of her desire to be in on the actual manufacture of the book and because she enjoys so much the contact that she has with you and the men at your plant.

Assuming that you can schedule this job to begin running on or about February 15th, Nell has asked if you would reserve a nice double room for her for two weeks at that nearby motel which you recommended to me last summer.

So much for now, and do keep us all in the picture. From now on I am sending copies of our correspondence to Nell and Joe.

With my very best regards,

Sincerely,

Burton Cumming
