Mrs. Nell Dorr
Nettleton Hollow Road
Washington, Connecticut

Dear Mrs. Dorr:

Owing, I suppose, to the vagaries of the postal system under certain administrations, the books arrived before Tine Everhard's letter of September 5, and I have already written you a note which expresses the warmth of my reaction to your photographs. I will be in New York for a week sometime next month, and if you are available we could perhaps discuss the postcard idea at that time. At your convenience could you let me know if you will be in town next month?

Sincerely,

Thomas A. Bledsoe
