Dear Mrs. Leonard:

In further answer to your letter of February 5th regarding photographs for a highschool book which deals with teen-agers, their development within a family, and their preparations for a family of their own, I am sending you under separate cover a selection of 62 photographs, taken at random from my files.

I have no way of knowing from what angle you treat the development of family instincts. If you intend to treat it in a "school book way", these pictures will have no place. If, however, you picture it with the hope of inspiring young people with the ideals of the age-old beauty within the home and the sacredness and beauty of motherhood with all that it can mean, then I feel these pictures may be of interest to you.

The price for the use of these pictures is $50 each, and credit must be given to the artist.

Sincerely,
