Member of The Royal Photographic Society,

London, England; Exhibition of Famous Men, Delphic Gallery, New York; exhibition of first photomurals ever shown, Maurice Sterner Gallery; Grand Central Gallery exhibit; exhibit in Miami, Florida, in Richmond, Virginia; and in London, England. Presently have four pictures hanging in the Steichen exhibit of "The Family of Man" at the Museum of Modern Art, New York. My father was John Jacob Becker of the firm of "Urlin & Becker" later changed to "Pieffer and Becker" of Cleveland, Ohio, being one of the early pioneer photographic studios there.

Early book called "Mangroves" which is out of print, privately printed and published in Florida. "In a Blue Moon", G. P. Putnam's Sons, N. Y., 1939. Colored 16 mm. moving picture called "The Singing Earth," original film on modern dance of which I did the photography, direction and script, which has been shown in colleges throughout the country and is now in the film library of the Museum of Modern Art. 16 mm. colored film called "The Dorr Way" which is a documentary film on world engineering which is worldwide in its scope and has been translated and shown both abroad and in South America. It is used in industry and in clubs such as Rotary Club, Lions Clubs, and in international business relations. "Mother and Child" Harper & Bros., 1954, New York, which has just been accepted by the U. S. Information Agency and will be sent by the United States Government to the various countries of the world to show the side of America which is too little understood by the rest of the world. Copies to be supplied by The Dorr Foundation. Nell Dorr has donated "Mother and Child" to The Dorr Foundation, feeling that it will have a wider distribution in the avenues where it can do the most good.
