Mr. John V. N. Dorr
Westport, Conn.

Dear John:

This is a very late time to answer your letter, but we have only just arrived home, getting in late last Tuesday, and up to now I have not had a minute to write to anybody.

Let me thank you now for the fine story about your good wife. Peg and I appreciated it very much indeed. The photographs are indeed beautiful.

Most of the time abroad we spent in Ireland in the vicinity of the house that Peg is prospectively buying, (she has a lease and option on it), but we were very much on the go, spending money on something we really don't, as yet, own. We were putting in two wells, and buying machinery up in Dublin, and making all kinds of inquiries from architects and builders, and the time just seemed to flit away. I, of course, tried to do a little salmon fishing, without any luck, as the storms had rendered the rivers too muddy. I should, I believe, have let Peg conduct all negotiations and gone fishing for the entire time; then I might have been able to bring you at least a piece of smoked salmon!

Looking forward to seeing you and Mrs. Dorr at an early date, I am, with again my thanks and most kind regards,

Sincerely yours,

Henry A. Rudkin
