

TAMPA UNIVERSITY PRESS
PENOBSCOT, MAINE

(Sec. 34.66, P.L.&R.)

John V. Dore
"West Branch"
Westport
Conn.

*Books which break new ground in the social sciences and
arts, written concretely and dramatically,
and free from academic jargon*

TRAVERSITY PRESS
PENOBSCOT, MAINE

Traversity Press (Travel University Press), publisher for the Floating University of which Sydney Greenbie was President, is absorbing the Tampa University Press founded at the University of Tampa in 1951.
Its symbol is the unwearied albatross, whose silhouette on a sea blue flag, flew from the mast of Floating University ships, and was reproduced in gold as the honor society key 25 years ago in Japan, with a Greek motto, "We seek the beautiful things of all the world."

ORDER TODAY

TAMPA UNIVERSITY PRESS
PENOBSCOT, MAINE

Send me.....copies of HOOF BEATS TO HEAVEN by Sydney and Marjorie Greenbie.
Cloth, illustrated, 639 pages. $6.00 plus 30¢ postage

Send me.....copies of ANNA ELLA CARROLL AND ABRAHAM LINCOLN by Sydney and Marjorie Barstow Greenbie.
Cloth, illustrated, 552 pages. $6.00 plus 30¢ postage

() check enclosed. () Institutions: Bill us.

Name
Street City (zone) State

Numbered and autographed copies available only if ordered direct from publisher.

order
D
via miss D
ordered both
on 10-20-55
est

A Great Story Never Before Told

Hoof Beats To Heaven

The Life and Wild Times of Peter Cartwright, Circuit Rider

by

SYDNEY GREENBIE and MARJORIE BARSTOW GREENBIE

NO SUCH FIGURE as the American circuit rider is to be found this side of the Apostles. Alone on his drooping horse, in rain, in snow, the Circuit Rider trudged the weary wilds, forty-five miles a day, 10,000 miles a year, his Bible in his saddlebag, a cold corn pone in his pouch, stars the only roof to his cathedral, breaking the way across the American continent for civilization to follow.

HOOF BEATS TO HEAVEN is the first in a series chronicling the life of the most spectacular of the circuit riders. It gives a day by day record of Peter's parents and his youth. It tells a gripping story of a boy battling his way to triumphant manhood through gamblers' hells, beset by easy women and such hardened murderers as Big and Little Harpe. Peter Cartwright, as depicted in these throbbing pages, is Huck Finn with a soul, Tom Sawyer with a great future, yet just as delectably boyish.

"What a book! Not only a history, but a thriller." Dr. Rachel Davis DuBois, Anthropologist.

"HOOF BEATS TO HEAVEN, while it deals with one of the most remarkable pioneer circuit riders who lived and operated in the expanding American nation in the early life of our country, really swings wider than the account of one man. Peter Cartwright's life and journal are really Americana which belong to the whole nation. The authors have caught the flavor of the pioneer era, and the reader's interest is drummed up by the hoofbeats to follow a man of God who also was a man of the American people in every way. A story very much worth the telling has certainly been well told." Dr. Nolan B. Harmon, Editor, Abingdon-Cokesbury Press, Member, Ex. Committee, Federal Council of Churches.

"Peter Cartwright, a great man who toiled far more effectively on the frontier than Johnny Appleseed and ought to be known better . . . is a hero of stature and admiration in the new book by the Greenbies, HOOF BEATS TO HEAVEN. They have succeeded in finding and piecing together a vast quantity of previously uncollected material about Cartwright, and are putting it to effective use. Their Cartwright chronicle is as unique an accomplishment as the Greenbies' biography of Anna Ella Carroll, the genuinely great friend of President Lincoln, but is on a much larger scale. . .

"The Greenbies were deprived of the fruits of their research and original portrayal of Miss Carroll when much of the material was lifted by a novelist. Protecting themselves this time, they are telling the story of Peter Cartwright in a form that is practically an historical novel. It has dialogue, dramatization and background 'filler' or coloration enough to make it attractive to persons to whom straight biography is less interesting than a novel based on it." Clark Kinnaird "Parade of Books," King Features Syndicate.

HOOF BEATS TO HEAVEN "is an interesting, highly readable and informative volume . . . As an interpreter of the age which produced this singular phenomenon in American history, this volume has no equal in the realm of my knowledge . . . accurate in its facts and refreshing in its interpretation." Dr. H. R. Carson, Vice-President, North General Jurisdiction, Methodist Historical Society.

order
D
via miss D
ordered both
on 10-20-55
est

The Biographical Find Of The Century

Anna Ella Carroll and Abraham Lincoln

"The great unrecognized member of Lincoln's Cabinet"

by

SYDNEY GREENBIE and MARJORIE BARSTOW GREENBIE

HOW our greatest President found in his own, and our country's darkest hour, the help and devotion of a woman worthy of him. Only America could produce such a story.

HERE, FOR THE FIRST TIME, after 90 years of evasion and mysterious silence, is the intimate story of that little circle around Lincoln with whom and through whom he won the Civil War. The queen of this circle was a loveable, righteous little spitfire, with the talents and influence of the great mistresses, and the character of a Christian gentlewoman.

THIS THRILLING STORY beggars all tales of queens and kings' mistresses. Daughter of a Maryland Governor, owner of a great plantation, a woman of great charm who held the affection of 50 of the leading men of her day, won their respect for her "rare mental ability," waged a courageous war on the enemies of the Union to which she gave a passionate devotion, and devised the military strategy that broke the rebellion.

"Her glorious achievements belong to America and the world."

Beautiful Brilliant Military Strategist Constitutional Lawyer

Douglas Southall Freeman, that industrious southern biographer, declared:

"Anna Ella Carroll was an extraordinary woman worthy of a great place in American history."

"a great book"

Howard Caswell Smith,
Ch. Bd., Appleton-Century-Crofts.

"overlooked and almost completely forgotten . . . a remarkable biography . . . impressive show of documents."

J. G. Randall, author,
"Lincoln, The President."

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL writes to a Carroll fan: "Dear Mr. Barden: Thanks for Anna Ella Carroll and Abraham Lincoln autographed by the authors. I greatly appreciate it." — "should be applauded by all," wrote Ambassador Stanley K. Hornbeck. — "a revelation to me and to thousands more," Burt Brown Barker, v-p University of Oregon. — "Read it with mingled awe and profound admiration," Winifred Mallon of N.Y. Times. — "Should be in all schools and public libraries," F. E. Wolverton, Mo. Department of Education.

"A gigantic contribution to history and literature — by two really outstanding authors."

Filson Club History Quarterly and Louisville Courier-Journal

"If accepted must result in a transvaluation of our national history."

The Christian Science Monitor

"From now on historians who ignore Anna will be culpable not of ignorance but of sheer misrepresentation."

Dr. Roy P. Basler, in Abraham Lincoln Association Quarterly.

Based on 200 of Anne Carroll's private letters and papers, including letters from President Fillmore and several from Jefferson Davis of incalculable historic importance, discovered by Sydney and Marjorie Greenbie in a Maryland attic.

A BOOK SO STRANGE AND NEW THAT 10 YEARS HENCE IT WILL STILL BE A NEW BOOK.

3rd large Printing.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

No two writers in America have done more to cover the world scene than Sydney Greenbie and Marjorie Barstow Greenbie. They have written intimately of the lives of the Japanese, the Chinese, the people of India, of Australia, New Zealand, and the South Seas, and of the culture of Europe. They have covered the American hemisphere from Canada to Argentina in fourteen books, telling the inspiring and romantic story of that "search for a better life" which peopled this western world. In pageants and plays, in lectures, and in diplomatic missions, they have explained our America to the world in thirty-three books.

And now, in this great story of Peter Cartwright, they are describing and analyzing for us those elements in our early history which make us Americans a new species on earth and which have placed in our hands, in this generation, the destiny of the whole human race. Intensely patriotic, never losing that glow with which the home-coming American first sees his own land after long residence abroad, they can explain America because they know so well what life is and has been outside it. And in this they are fitted, by their long experience, to be torchbearers for this generation of Americans who, like them, have learned to see their own land from the perspective of many other lands and peoples.

Sydney Greenbie was Special Assistant to the American Minister to New Zealand in World War II, and head of the Office of War Information there. He was formerly president of the Floating University (Travel University or Traversity) which offered a full college year of academic work to students traveling around the world and living in twenty-two countries. Marjorie Barstow Greenbie has a Ph.D. from Yale University, and has been on the faculty of Vassar College, Connecticut College, Mount Holyoke College, and the University of Kansas.

She went around the world on an assignment from the Methodist Centenary Commission to write the Pageant produced at Columbus, Ohio, and seen by thousands. It was then that she first planned a book on Peter Cartwright.

HEAR THEM TALK

For an unforgettable club or home event, invite Sydney and Marjorie Greenbie to talk to your friends or groups on literature, writing, or their experiences around the world.

"I hardly know how to thank you for the wonderful generosity to our Workshop group and their guests. It was really a memorable occasion," wrote Elizabeth Borden of Radcliffe College.

And Edith Stearns, of Coconut Grove, Miami, wrote: "Friends are still talking of your entertaining crossfire conversations. And a guest at the party writes that the book has made a great hit with her."

Our season "came to an end with a lecture by a man who made exciting the dull subject of international affairs. He unfolded to a packed audience of 1500 a picture of the causes of international friction which sent his listeners home with a lot of cobwebs cleared out of their minds. . . . A splendid, splendid meeting, fully up to the standard. Sydney Greenbie is all that we desired. He certainly showed himself an authority in the session." Director, Daytona Beach Forum, Fla.

"A fluent, frank and interesting conversationalist, he has not hesitated to say what he thinks and by doing so has removed many misconceptions." New Zealand Observer.

Of Marjorie Greenbie, a member of the AAUW wrote: "We were charmed by her lovely manner and amusing remarks."

They are available en route to and from their home between Maine and California wherever autograph-parties are arranged, and for school and church groups.

For regular lecture terms write:

Robert Carrick,
Penobscot, Maine