Dear Carlotta:

Thank you for your good letter and for the affirmation "You selected the best egg picture I had!"

I am delighted to see you are doing more work -- at least getting it out and exposed to the public -- in spite of physical limitations. That takes courage and fortitude, virtues of a good artist.

One detail we seem to have overlooked: what year was "Eggs Multiplied" executed -- 1944? What was it that drew you towards the exploration of light? Could you clue me in on the evolution of that process? What had you been reading? What were you looking at?

All here send warmest greetings.

Sincerely,

Alan Du Bois
Assistant Director
