Dear Mr. Porter:

I much enjoyed our luncheon visit today. I hope you will make it a habit to drop in on us when you are in Washington so that we can repeat.

Here is a copy of the Harvey Broome selection that will be in the October/December issue of THE LIVING WILDERNESS. I really don't think it necessary to illustrate the specifics of the text, but perhaps it will be suggestive to you.

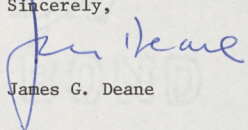

I talked with Al Cetta a few minutes ago. He said he was sure we can get duplicate separations from Italy, provided the originals have been kept intact. He said he would want to talk to Mr. McRae about the question of permission and would also want to verify, of course, that our use of some of the photographs is agreeable to you. Would you want to drop a line to Mr. McRae or Mr. Cetta to this effect?

We will look forward to giving suitable treatment to the Iceland images in a later issue. I still have some qualms about going forward with them without your participation. (But of course we will have the same challenge if we use some of your originals from the Smokies.)

We will appreciate a chance to look over some Smoky material from your file.

I trust you will have a most interesting and productive trip to the Antarctic.

Sincerely,

James G. Deane
