Dear Mr. Porter:

I got the epilogue safely and have sent on to Jack, once again urging him to try and have all loose ends gathered so that the two of you can talk when you are here and iron out any problems, if there are any.

The epilogue reads well to me but I don't know that I could make a full judgement until I knew the make-up of the book. I have never been out to that region so the references to the various canyons seems to me to indicate a map would be needed--and I suppose there will be one?

I must say what you tell about Lake Powell sounds horrible--but then man everywhere is making a mess of the natural world

yours

Diarmuid Russell
