Dearest Eliot,

Here are the pictures I chose*. 33 Slides and 38 black and white. I would be sad if no b.+w. could be used. If I could write well, it might be more convincing, that these market pictures are not so depending on color. Maybe Donna Pierce can use some of the ideas of the text. — Of course I have many more b.+w. About 1000. — If the kind of book needs certain themes, you might ask me, if I have them. The strawberry woman is the only non-religious one, that you ever printed of my color ones. I hope you will put the birdboy in. And the "bunwale" (I put a white robed little girl in my choice if they should happen to go together) If some church pictures will be used, please, use the tea party 28-8, and at least one Saint with a knife or axe (37-34?) and the Christ with the pink slippers 30-31. I am very eager to get some information what kind of book is planned.

I enclose my itinerary for July.

I hope you will not hesitate to ask me for any cooperation which might be usefull.

With much love

P.S. I am sick with a nasty flu' and can't write about the Market and the Supermarket. If any of the "B.+W." can be used, I will try later. I meant to describe a very modern Supermarket with its overpowering opulence and almost complete dehumanized efficiency and in contrast our market pictures in which the selling is almost a by product of the real role of the market. A meeting place to chat and cook and eat and feed and dream and read - - - - The farmer's eager rush to the Caxaca market (38-1-7) with so little produce. The loving feeding of the children... well, you know it all and you might tell it to Donna Pierce. I really hope you can use a few black and white pictures. The red dots were meant to illustrate the little article I can't now write because I feel too drowsy, but in a few days I hope to be well. Keep me posted and forgive this somewhat incoherent writing with love
