Attu,

I was in New Orleans two days ago. I drove around the campus area for two hours but couldn't find a McAlister St. or a Tulane Admin. Bldg. Due to that fact and ~~a weather~~ unpleasant weather conditions (fog, cold, and six inches of rain per minute) I decided "to hell with it." Maybe we can figure out some way to get together.

Had a real nice drive from Ft. Worth and saw a lot of beautiful scenery. The only part I didn't particularly care for was the "one-hundred miles of rain which started when I left New Orleans. The radio announcer termed it "light rain". Brother I hope I never have navigate a heavy one.

Really got hooked on that Cosby gal. Almost made me turn my thoughts to vine-covered cottages. You know when one does that to the old tom cat she must be nice.

I'll hit the ~~go~~ high points and spare you all the givin details of Navy life here at Pensacola. The base is beautiful, the living conditions - so so, the working conditions are excellent, and the recreation just aint. That's summer.

The place I think I could really go for is that Gulf

Port, Miss. area. Just a first impression gained from sight only of course. What do you think of it?

Sony are didn't see much of one another during the holidays. Don't know if I told you but my father had a heart attack the day after Christmas. Between driving my mother and sister doing things for my dad, two trips a day to the hospital, and keeping company with one Miss. Cosby, my free time was nil.

Better cut this short and let you get back to Nuclear Physics.

Your buddy,
