Dear Scott and Stuart:

I am enclosing the recent National Geographic in case you have not already seen it or might need an extra copy.

The illustrations seem to be universally poor, with the exception of those diagrams relating to the Templo Mayor. They did, however, get close to that magical color we have talked about on the vase on page 705 and on parts of the Chac Mool shown on page 770. Also there is some excellent writing on the excavations by the Mexican coordinator of the entire great temple project. I guess this is the best they can do for now, as they seem to lack access to people like yourselves.

Our project is progressing nicely. The painting you sent has generated a good deal of enthusiasm for the Aztec part of the film. I will have more news soon. If you have any for me, please call us at (213) 556-2604.

Sincerely,

John Lilly Jr.

P.S. The photos of your work will be ready at the end of this week, please excuse the delay.
