Dear Stewart:

I was in Boston for the Annual Meeting of the North American Print Conference several days ago and I met a Professor from the University of Georgia that I think you would be interested in talking with. His name is Louis De Vorsey and he is Professor in the Department of Geography at the University of Georgia in Athens, 30602, telephone 404/542-2324. He has done extensive research on the Aztecs in Mexico and the subject of his paper at the print conference was the first map of Mexico City, which of course, was made while it was the Aztec Capital. His contention is that it is an Indian map of the city which a Spanish cartographer simply copied.

I told him about your project and he seemed most interested. Please feel free to get in touch with him, if you would like to.

It's been too long since we have had an opportunity to visit. I saw a review of your show at Dutch's Gallery and hope that it went well. Sorry I did not get to see it myself.

Best wishes.

Sincerely yours,

Ron Tyler
