Dear Ralph:

Kathy gave me these enclosed photographs. We think that our older son Jack in the picture Stuart painted doesn't really come off like him. His eyes don't look quite right. They look a little cross-eyed and also give him a look of apathy or ennui which is just not the boy. He is full of life and has a sparkling personality. I hate to bother you with this because I know how busy Stuart is but think you have produced an otherwise great painting and know you want it to be as perfect as you can make it, which we all know is damn close to perfect.

Mary Dilworth will be happy to work with you to help get this accomplished.

Sincerely,
