Dear Stuart,

I have not been in contact because I have been on vacation, and when I returned I wanted to discuss the project with Bill Nowlin. Since Bill, too, has been out of town, I was not able to talk to him about the mural until last week.

We have not made any final decisions about who will execute the mural painting for the Caracol. All we know is that we want it to be done in a Maya fresco style/technique. We still don't have a scheme for the mural composition drawn by Nikolai Gruba. He is out of the country this summer, so I don't know when we will receive his work.

So as of yet, everything is still up in the air.

Sincerely yours,

Paul Lamb, Architect
