

Bob Smith

From: Sir Humphry [sir.humphry@virgin.net]
Sent: Thursday, April 13, 2006 6:15 PM
To: sales@MyPapasan.com
Subject: Re: Note from Stuart Gentling

Dear Stuart,

That time is rushing near! It is not quite such a plain sailing time as I would long for. But, I know we will make out, and will plan plans to suit you. My problems in particular are these:

1. 23rd April, Sunday. I have people/cousins coming to stay for the night in the North, and have put them off before! (When you come to stay in the North, 4 hours by train, it needs to be for more than a rushed day or so, to make that very long journey worth the while.)
2. 25th April, Tuesday. I have a party to stay for a lecture I am giving the following day.
3. 26th April, Wednesday. You go away.

So, what is left:

1. 22nd April. I could come up to London for the 22nd, but just maybe Jack could take you to Oxford thenabouts, as he has some special ploy for you there. BUT if he does that I would so like you to see murals by a friend of mine, on the way to/from Oxford, maybe the largest murals of the last century, and interesting, I hope for you. Yes, so if Jack can fix that, for the 23rd maybe, I would come up to London, and see the murals on the way to Oxford on the 22nd, and then I could go on north for my date.
2. 23rd April. Maybe Oxford with Jack, if only he can fix it then, as it is a bit short notice for complex unpacking and displaying of precious documents.
3. 24th April. I could come back to London and we could do this and that.
4. 25th April. I would have to leave at midday, to get North for my happenings. But we could do something in the morning?

Anyway, we will work on it and I long to see what we can find to intrigue you. Who or what else would you like to fill in your time?

So very good to hear from you and that you will be here, I just wish that I was not so wing clipped for you. But, at least you will be here!

Ever,

Humphry.

----- Original Message -----

From: Bob Smith
To: sir.humphry@virgin.net
Sent: Thursday, April 13, 2006 10:47 PM
Subject: Note from Stuart Gentling

Dear Humphry,

Just received your delightful letter. We will be in London and available on April 22. We leave for home on the 26th. So, we have the 22, 23, 24, 25th to play. I have not mailed the goodies I gave you and Jack when you were here but will try to do so before I depart for the U.K. Or I will bring them myself!

4/13/2006

Please note your credit card will be billed to PeregrineImports.com

I loved your letter and am excited about spending time with you. I am very open for sightseeing or anything really.

Best wishes and with anticipation, I remain, sir, your humble servant.

Stuart

webmaster@Gentling.com

4/13/2006

11 Please note your credit card will be billed to PeregrineImports.com