Paul Krugman, in his New York Times column of October 16th. has convincingly laid forth the reason why party control is everything in this election. In two words it is "subpoena power." He says, "...if they (the Democrats) win they will gain the ability to carry out investigations, and the legal right to compel testimony." The only hope for proper investigations of rampant corruption and for the impeachment and conviction of the White House idiot, is a Democratic victory. Unfortunately, this calls for a prohibition on voting for any Republican congressional or senatorial candidate, no matter how well qualified. But we're up against the ruthless Rove machinations; so there can be no holds barred. So what can we do? Democratic voters must be activated in the critical areas: Ohio, Florida, Virginia, Colorado, Oregon, Illinois and Iowa, to name a few. After six years of nearly unbearable frustration, I now see a get-out-the-vote effort of unspeakable importance. Will we in the critical areas take on the job in the few days left?
