

BCC: S&S Gentling

Janet:

As you requested last week before heading for the Wyeth Show, I am repeating the earlier inquiry, knowing that you have obviously seen Steve Blow's fine Dallas Life feature on the Gentling twins.

However, they will be in New York for the auction Thursday, and bidding is expected to be spirited as the New York Historical Society which owns more than 180 Audubon paintings, tries to complete its Audubon grackles series with the purchase of the third one.

Also, FYI, Cable News Network and ABC TV GoodMorning America are seeking interviews and Reuters International has just completed a lengthy interview, so national interest is apparently escalating.

Finally, the watercolors, which the F.W. Museum of Sci. & Hist. are purchasing, have just begun exhibition there. (Nina Arback, PR coordinator with the Museum, sent you a press kit.)

So, there are a number of angles in what is still a dramatic local story. Please let me know your interest, as the Gentlings fly out this afternoon.

Warm regards,

Preston
