Dear «Greeting»:

On Saturday, June 19th, Scott and Stuart Gentling and I are going to host a small reception at the new Gentling Studio at 4928 Bryce Avenue. Scott and Stuart are celebrating a special exhibition and sale of recent watercolors and giclee prints of their still-lives, landscapes and portraits. On display too will be a few of their popular Texas birds and some of their vivid renderings of the ancient Aztec world. It will be the largest display of Gentling work since the Kimbell Art Museum's exhibit of their Bass Performance Hall designs in 1998.

On May 16th the Gentlings hosted an evening of classical chamber music and dinner for about 100 guests, inaugurating the 2004 Mimir Summer Chamber Music Festival. The Mimir musicians headed by Van Cliburn medallist Jose Feghali and violinist Curt Thompson presented a truly world-class musical performance, and the acoustics of the new studio courtyard were stunning. More musical performances are planned.

Although the Gentlings have been associated with the Gerald Peters Gallery for several years, they will always consider Fort Worth their home. With this small reception and sale - only about fifty guests are invited - the Gentlings hope to begin an annual Spring tradition. Unlike previous shows a number of smaller works and studies will be offered for sale.

ART Scott and Stuart will be displaying many newly-acquired examples of Ancient Greek and Roman art as well as important recent acquisitions of pre-Columbian pottery and sculpture. Their Aztec collection has been called one of the finest in the country still in private hands. And don't be surprised if you see some of their remarkable collection of original 18th century costumes on display as well.

Also, in keeping with the political season, we will be displaying Scott's portraits of President Bush and two landscapes of their Prairie Chapel Ranch at Crawford, Texas commissioned by President and Mrs. Bush to hang in the White House.

Sincerely,

Ralph Carr
