Log Cabin Village and The Van Zandt Cottage

Major K.M. Van Zandt
(1836 - 1930)

Did you know that The Van Zandt Cottage, located on Crestline Road just east of University Drive, is Fort Worth's oldest house still on its original foundation?

The Cottage, a Registered Texas Historic Landmark, was built in the 1850s (actual date unknown). Major K. M. Van Zandt bought the house and accompanying farmland in 1872 from the A. G. Scoggin family. This farmland encompassed what we now know as the Botanic Gardens, part of Trinity Park and the Cultural District. The house was on the stagecoach line between Weatherford and Fort Worth, and when the river was too high to ford, the Van Zandts hosted stagecoach passengers. The family occupied the Cottage until 1879 when they moved to a larger home at Penn Street and West 7th.

Now owned and operated by the City of Fort Worth, the Cottage is under the professional guidance of Kelli Pickard, who also serves as Museum Director for Log Cabin Village.

In 2004 The Van Zandt Cottage Friends, Inc. was formed to provide support and fundraising for the Director and Staff of the Log Cabin Village as they oversee the maintenance, preservation and programming of the Cottage.

The "Friends" has been granted 501(c)(3) status by the IRS as a not-for-profit charitable organization and is thus able to receive tax deductible donations.
