Dear Stuart,

Glad to talk to you and to hear the progress of THE BOOK. It keeps gaining in stature--it will be unreal to see the finished product. There are a couple of ways of going with both the portfolio and the b&w book, either total offset or partial letterpress, the latter being much more expensive because of the need for top quality metal typesetting and softer papers to print on, but the result would be out of this world! There are no fine letterpress printers that have the press size capabilities to take a 28" or 30" sheet but I am toying with the idea of purchasing a large Heidelberg letterpress that can take a 35" sheet. My new shop has plenty of room for this press and I have another job that could be used on it as well. If you decide that you wish me to print the text for the portfolio by letterpress, we can give your deposit to a 3rd party until I provide proof of purchase of such machinery necessary to complete the work.
