Dear Stuart:

I am shipping today by Purolator 16 more letterpress pages for your approval. Along with these pages will be the acknowledgement which needs your proofreading and the terra cotta label which you will like very much. I wouldn't let Mother send it before because I read into it the University of Texas colors which is really silly on my part. It looks the best on the box as you will see!

Winter Grass will be reprinted after all the book is done so that I will know that I have plenty of paper. It is such a shame that this has to be done, but I guess that posterity will note the disparity of the Initials and think what kind of artists and printer was this that couldn't get the author correct! If Scott's name hadn't been mentioned in the text, it would just have been an interesting point for some historian to decipher who had written the chronicles etc. etc. etc. I am not being facetious in this either. I really feel this book is going to be a monumental success and one that will be pondered over by future writers, artists, and printers. We do want to make sure to cover all bases.

Now back to the press.

Sincerely,

David Holman
